No Al-Hilli charge

The brother of a Claygate man who was shot dead in the French Alps has been released on bail after police questioning.

Zaid Al-Hilli, 54, of Bray Court, North Parade, Chessington, was arrested on suspicion of conspiracy to commit murder, at his home on June 24, at about 7.30am.

He was released on Tuesday evening, 36 hours after his arrest.

Saad Al-Hilli, 50, of Oaken Lane, his wife Iqbal, 57, and his mother-in-law Suhaila Al-Allaf, 74, were shot dead – along with French cyclist, Sylvain Mollier, 45, – in their BMW while on holiday near Lake Annecy on September 5, last year.

'GREEDY' MOBILE THIEF SPARED JAIL

University IT boss stole £20k worth of phones

A "greedy" Kingston University ICT boss has walked free after stealing more than £20,000 worth of mobile phones.

Christopher Kelly, 38, who is single and lives with his parents, repaid the university that had given him a promotion and £12,000 pay rise, by selling used handsets to phone recycling companies.

He even used some of his ill-gotten gains to buy 40 new iPhones to sell and make even more cash.

Kelly was caught when suspicions were raised at companies Mazuma and Envirofone.

He appeared at Kingston Crown Court on Friday, June 21, to be sentenced having earlier admitted two counts of theft relating to 66 mobile phones.

by ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

In total, he stole £21,561 worth of equipment despite earning £36,000 a year before he was sacked last year.

The court heard 39 phones, worth £6,995, were recovered and given back to the university.

Kelly has repaid the remaining £14,566 with the help of his family.

Kelly had started working for the university as a technician in 2007, and was paid £24,000 a year.

He gained a first class degree in business while working for the university full time.

He was later promoted and given a £12,000 pay rise, to £36,000 a year.

Marie Spenwyn, defending Kelly, said: "It seems there came a time where various personal and work issues overwhelmed Mr Kelly."

"He had moved some distance away for his job resulting in a four hour commute and it seems to have got on top of him."

"Clearly something else was going on at the time that caused him to act out of character – he didn't actually need the money."

But Judge Richard Southwell said: "I don't think he was doing out of need."

"I think he was doing it out of greed. Your prospects of offending again are remote in the extreme, and this has had a considerable impact on you and affected your health."

"That's self inflicted – there's no getting around that."

"It is right to say people can't buy themselves out of trouble by repaying sums they've stolen from their employers."

"But it has all been repaid, and if that has been painful, then so it should be."

Kelly, from New Milton in Hampshire, was sentenced to 12 months, custody for each offence, suspended for two years.

He was also ordered to carry out 180 hours of unpaid work and pay £500 in costs.

He was also found not guilty of two other charges of fraud and money laundering, after the Crown Prosecution Service offered no evidence.

Sex offender is given third chance to change his ways

by JON SHARMAN

jon.sharman@london.newsquest.co.uk

A repeat sex offender has avoided prison for a third time after a judge "took a big risk" to let him walk free.

Justin Willis, 19, had twice been given suspended prison sentences for sexual offences involving women in a club and on a train.

His latest indecent exposure on the 281 bus breached a 50-week suspended sentence handed down at Blackfriars Crown Court last May, after Willis ejaculated on a woman's coat on a train from Clapham Junction.

Less than a month later he sexually assaulted another woman in a nightclub, for which he was given another suspended sentence, of 15 months, in January this year.

Suspended sentences mean a criminal is given a chance to stay out of trouble, with the threat of a prison stretch if they re-offend.

He was told he had avoided prison when he was sentenced at Kingston Crown Court on Wednesday, June 19, to 10 months in prison, suspended for two years.

Judge Fergus Mitchell told Willis: "I am not sentencing you to prison today, and the reason is that it is felt that there is some progress being made here.

"It is an incentive not to behave in the way that you have been behaving.

"There is something there that you have got to suppress – society will not tolerate it. The law takes a pretty dim view of it.

"I am giving you all the credit that I can. I do not want to see you again. You know what will happen to you."

Judge Mitchell said to probation officers, who said Willis was engaging with them: "I feel like I am taking a big risk with this. I am responsible because I am not sending him down and keeping him off the streets.

"The defendant should express his gratitude to you."

A spokeswoman for Rights of Women, a group which gives free legal advice to women, said: "Sentences of imprisonment may be appropriate to protect the public, particularly if someone is not engaging with other services designed to address their offending behaviour."

Willis is subject to a two-year supervision order, and is banned from drinking alcohol or going into clubs or bars.

Problem drinkers

Police could be given the power to stop drinkers on the streets of Kingston.

Plans to introduce restrictions on alcohol consumption in parts of the town centre will be discussed by councillors next week.

A proposed designated public places order (DPPO) is part of revisions to a 12-year-old joint scheme between the council and police to tackle high levels of boozing in Kingston.

Should residents agree, the exact area of the DPPO would likely cover Canbury, Tudor and Grove wards.

Liberal Democrat Grove councillor Chrissie Hitchcock said: "At the end of the day it is the people we have got to listen to.

"I might have my own personal views, but I have to see what they say and make the judgement from there."

Conservative Canbury councillor Andrea Craig said: "I have been very public in my support of any initiative led by the police and residents that are going to enhance their ability to control crime hotspots."

DPPOs do not make it a criminal offence to consume alcohol – but it would be an offence to carry on drinking after a police officer's request to stop.

Funding has yet to be found.

Meeting and talking with the technician making your denture is a key benefit. The team has been trained directly by Dr Stewart to be able to carry out treatment to the highest level.

Amazing Results

Many patients have confidence in their dentist treating their natural teeth but often feel that they are less capable in assisting them with their denture problems.

Revolutionary Techniques

The Denture Clinic has seen and helped with just about every conceivable denture problem that exists and has developed many new exclusive techniques to improve dentures and solve issues.

In recent years the clinic has also pioneered new systems including 3D dentures, and conventional dental implants for dentures to "clip" onto. For those who are not suitable for this Mini Dental Implants can often be a solution.

The Denture Clinic receives numerous referrals from general dentists and helps solve common patient frustrations with dentures.

'I looked at his top and it was covered in blood'

A friend of Jamie Sanderson cradled the 20-year-old in his arms as he lay dying inside Oceana, a court has heard.

His last words were: "I want to find the p*s that punched me in the face and that", an Old Bailey murder trial heard last week.

Jamie Sanderson, died of a single stab wound to the heart after being attacked in the Kingston nightclub in the early hours of October 25 last year.

Levan Greenfield, 22, and Ashley Milne, 22, both of Peckham, and Brandon Francis, 19, of West Dulwich and Benjamin Onwuma, 20, of Walworth, all deny murder.

At about 3am, Mr Smith saw someone lying in the entrance to the men's toilets, the court heard. He slapped Mr Sanderson's face to wake him up.

He said: "He woke up and at this point I thought he was fine. I looked at his top and could see he was covered in blood."

"I lifted up his top and I could see he'd been stabbed in the right hand side of the chest."

"I told him he'd been stabbed and he replied: "F that, just forget it. I want to find the p*s that punched me in the face and that."

He got up but then collapsed and later died in an ambulance. The trial continues.

Deal means club could stay open

Troubled nightclub: Oceana

Kingston Council has struck a deal with the owners of Oceana that would see the nightclub retain its licence and stay open, the Kingston Guardian has learned.

The council revoked the Clarence Street venue's licence during a public hearing last November following the fatal stabbing of Jamie Sanderson.

Club bosses Luminar Group appealed the decision, and were due to go head to head with the council at an appeal hearing starting on July 8.

But it is understood council officers have backed out of the court case, amid fears it could lose the appeal and have to fork out thousands of pounds in court costs.

Instead, the council has agreed a series of conditions with Luminar, which were due to be presented

by ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

to Lavender Hill Magistrates' Court on Wednesday, June 26, after this newspaper went to press.

A Shut Down Oceana Facebook group attracted 2,352 supporters in the wake of the stabbing, with hundreds more clubbers criticising security at the venue.

The club will shut most Tuesdays and Sundays, have reduced hours and have its capacity cut to 2,000 people.

Tessa Kind, secretary of Mill Street Residents' Association, said: "I didn't want to see it closed down, but I did want to see much tougher restrictions on the licence."

"The council has backed down to an almost laughable degree. It seems they are going to close about half an hour earlier - what good is that?"

Richard Grosvenor, who lives in Kingston, said: "If our myopic, self-serving councillors and depressingly naive Guildhall officers were ever willing to leave their comfort zones and smell the roses, or rather, the vomit, by sampling late night life in the town they are supposed to represent, there is no way Luminar would ever get the council's support again."

Kingston Council initially dodged questions on whether or not a deal had been agreed, instead issuing a statement from new council leader Coun Liz Green on the authority's continuing work with Luminar.

It read: "The council has been working with Luminar to consider a range of initiatives that might increase personal safety at their venue and improve the experience of visiting the town centre in the evening."

Luminar has made drastic attempts to improve the club's image in the wake of Mr Sanderson's death on October 25.

In April, the company said the club had experienced an 80 per cent decrease in crime in the first three months of 2013.

It has also implemented a major mobile phone safety campaign, and recruited four new street wardens.

The Luminar Group's chief executive Peter Marks said: "We are pleased the efforts we have made to respond to residents' concerns and further enhance safety and security at the club are being recognised."

Alarm over hospital's false fire call-out rate

by HANA HAUSMEISTER

hana.hausmeister@london.newsquest.co.uk

Fire services were called out to Kingston Hospital about once a week on average last year, making it the worst offender in the borough for automatic false alarms.

Automatic fire alarms at the hospital were attended 58 times between April 2012 and March 2013, official figures have revealed.

As part of a draft London safety plan, the Fire Brigade would soon be able to fine venues with more than 10 false alarms a year.

Kingston University and Tolworth Hospital were among the top five, with Seething Wells halls of residence logging 50 call-outs from automatic alarms in the same period.

A spokeswoman for Kingston Hospital said: "We are aware of the need to reduce the number of automatic fire alarm call outs and have been working in consultation with fire officers from the London Fire Brigade on ways to reduce them."

"We have enhanced the trust's fire response team and they have received additional training, which will help to reduce the number of call outs."

The UK economy loses about £1bn a year from false call-outs,

Emergency? Organisations could be charged for false alarms the London Fire Brigade has claimed.

Automatic fire alarms and fire detection systems account for a third of all incidents for London fire crews.

Plans to recoup costs from false alarm calls could see building owners being charged at least £290 for every engine that attends.

The number of calls from Kingston University has already prompted talks on how to improve the service. A new system was put in place in September 2012, which allows four minutes for a situation to be assessed before the Fire Brigade is called out.

A spokeswoman for the university said: "The system is working well and the university is pleased to report that the number of unnecessary call-outs has significantly reduced as a result."

Since September 2012, there have been seven call-outs to the Seething Wells halls.

Chessington's slow response

The time it takes fire engines to get to calls in Chessington South ward is the longest in London, fire brigade figures show.

Initial response times are not set to improve following £28.8m of cuts which will see fire engines and stations lost across the capital.

It takes the first engine answering a call nine minutes and 47 seconds to get to a caller in Chessington South, and eight minutes and 30 seconds if the caller is in Chessington North and Hook ward.

The London Fire Brigade's target for first responses is six minutes; for second responses, eight minutes.

It takes firefighters 10 minutes and 39 seconds to get a second engine to Chessington North and Hook - and 11 minutes and 20 seconds to Chessington South.

Conservative London Assembly member for the south-west, Tony Arbour, said savings made from cuts do not need to be re-invested in areas with longer response times.

He said: "You only need to look at a map to see why there is this anomaly. The sensible place to have fire stations is where there is the greatest need."

"I imagine that were there to be a substantial fire in Chessington our neighbours in Surrey would assist, just as we assist them."

Labour Assembly member Navin Shah, vice-chairman of the London Fire Authority, said: "I don't think the Mayor should be cutting the £28m in the first place."

"We should look at reviewing where our resources are placed to ensure that the fire brigade can best respond to the risk Londoners face from fire."

The first Kingston Connections 'storytelling' festival started on Saturday at the Rose Theatre and has attracted some big names, including Jack Straw who appeared on Tuesday. ROSS LOGAN spoke to him

Last man standing sits in at festival

On September 10, 2001, new Foreign Secretary Jack Straw was in Manchester giving a speech on foreign policy.

His first three months had been uneventful, and Mr Straw was, in his own words, "getting twitchy".

He says: "The first three months nothing happened at all. I was getting twitchy because we were getting scarcely any coverage.

"I went to Manchester on September 10 and gave a big speech about foreign policy to try and drum up interest.

"It failed miserably."

But just 24 hours later, the UK's Foreign Minister would suddenly find himself caught up in the defining moment of the early 21st century.

Recalling the events of 9/11, Mr Straw said: "I was in the foreign office.

"I was talking to Geoff Hoon, the Defence Secretary, and my head of staff about the deployment of troops in Macedonia.

"Then one of my private secretaries came in and said we should turn on the television.

"My first thoughts were that this was a terrible accident. But then the second plane hit and I realised it was the worst terrorist attack we'd ever seen."

It is fascinating talking to a man who for 13 years was a permanent fixture on the Labour Government's front-benches – one of only three ministers to serve throughout the entire administration.

Now, having retired to the backbenches, the Blackburn MP is touring the country in support of his autobiography, Last Man Standing.

He visited Kingston's Rose Theatre on Tuesday as part of the Kingston Connections festival.

Writing the book has allowed him to speak openly about his life outside of politics for the first time, he says.

"There's plenty of new stuff about my childhood. I've tried to explain who I am.

"I've been pretty private about my personal and family life. Some ministers decide to bring all that out and I've always been wary of it.

"My wife and I have been very protective of that – and not always succeeded."

The incident he alludes to is Christmas 1997, when his son, William, was arrested on suspicion of possessing cannabis.

He said his public persona as an intensely private man helped his family through the ensuing media circus.

He says: "I never advertise my children or family in election material. Because when you suffer like we did in Christmas 1997, we found the public reaction to be more sympathetic.

"I think one of the things that turned the screw in Chris Huhne's case was the fact he put pictures of his wife and children playing happy families in his election ads."

Elections seem to be a specialty of Mr Straw's. He has been the MP for Blackburn since 1979, and has publicly stated he has no plans to retire anytime soon.

But asked about Labour's chances at the next general election, he says: "I'm an eternal pessimist when it comes to elections. I didn't think we'd win in 1997.

"I think it might be why I've done well in them. I'm still knocking on doors at five to ten on election night when everyone else has headed out for drinks."

Stalls offered three months

Two stallholders kicked out of Kingston's Market Place have been offered the chance to continue trading for an additional three months.

David Wilson and Angela Lassiter were among three market traders told to leave the historic site by town centre managers Kingstonfirst, ahead of a revamp which will see the market sell hot and cold food exclusively.

Their eviction sparked outrage among shoppers and Kingston Guardian readers, with a petition set up against the move attracting hundreds of signatures.

But the campaign failed to persuade Kingstonfirst, and Mr Wilson and Mrs Lassiter – along with a third stallholder, Lorna Herne – were booted off the market in May.

But now Mr Wilson and Mrs Lassiter have confirmed they have been offered an extension to stay at the market place until September.

An alternative offer of three months' rent was also put on the table.

Mrs Lassiter, who runs a greeting card stall, has turned down the chance to return to Kingston, having

by ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

moved to Leatherhead Market on Thursdays and Saturdays.

She is still considering the offer of compensation.

Mrs Lassiter said: "They offered us three months up to September, or three months' worth of rent.

"If I went back for three months I'd only have to leave again and then I wouldn't get on the Leatherhead market for Christmas.

"I'm a goner, I'm not going back in any way, shape or form."

Mr Wilson, who ran a record and DVD stall for more than 35 years in Kingston, has not been working.

Mr Wilson, who paid more than £900 a month in rent, said: "What they have offered is not wholly satisfactory. I haven't earned a penny in over a month."

However, he said he had not rejected either offer outright, and was consulting with solicitors as to what to do next.

A spokeswoman for Kingstonfirst said: "I have no further update at this time."

Artists got together to show off their year's work, and raised hundreds for Berrylands Christian Centre in the process.

The Berrylands Artists group held its annual exhibition last Saturday, and donated about £350 for the centre's upkeep.

Group member Carol Morris said: "It is always a very happy day.

"People have got used to coming and know they are going to have a good time and see friends."

People visiting the exhibition voted for which works of art they liked best.

Pensioners' rat-in-the-box cry for help

A pair of peeved pensioners packed a container of rats into a Poundland bag to take to a council meeting.

Anita Simpson, 70, and her husband Victor Simpson, 86, had caught three of the rats in their garden at The Glebe in Worcester Park earlier in the day.

They brought them along to the Maldens and Coombe neighbourhood committee meeting last Wednesday night as a cry for help after Kingston Council refused to help with their vermin-infested area.

But the couple, who have now caught 21 rats in their garden with Homebase traps, did not need to bring out their party trick as councillors at the meeting were sympathetic.

Old Malden Councillor David Fraser said: "They pay the highest tax in London. I think they deserve a better service."

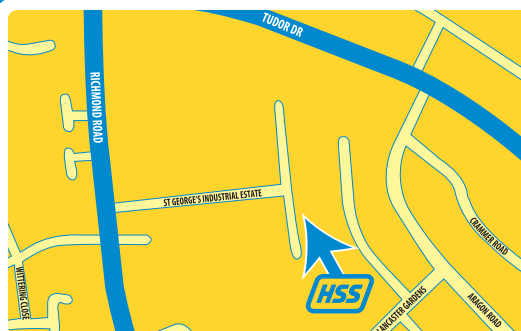

A full investigation by council health officers into the rats has been ordered.

'The age of consort': New council leader is named Surbiton Councillor Liz Green has been named the new leader of Kingston Council.

News of Coun Green's appointment was broken by an unlikely source – her Labour-supporting husband.

Michael Green, who works for credit union Kingston Savers, set tongues wagging when he tweeted: "The age of consort begins :-)."

Twenty minutes later his wife announced her new role as leader.

Former deputy leader Coun Green, who represents St Marks ward, was unanimously voted in by Liberal Democrat councillors.

Her appointment was made one week after Derek Osbourne stepped down following his arrest on suspicion of

by ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

possessing indecent images of children.

She had been acting leader following Mr Osbourne's resignation.

As head of the ruling party, she will automatically become the new leader of Kingston Council.

She will also continue in her role as lead member of children and young people – a post she only recently took over – until a replacement is found.

Coun Green said: "I'm feeling very pleased that the group has supported me to be leader.

"It's always something I've wanted to do.

"When I was first elected in 2002, I joked with [then council leader] Roger Hayes that I would be leader."

Coun Green, a mother of two from Surbiton, said her first priority would be to organise a new council leadership team, as well as continue working to improve the borough's children's services following last year's inadequate Ofsted inspection.

She said: "We are working to make sure we have a full leadership team in about a week or so. We also cannot lose sight of children's services.

"I had started to do some work with young carers and it is something I particularly want to carry on with.

"As leader, I will still have statutory responsibility for children's services, and it is something I will be keeping a very close eye on when we appoint a new lead member."

Coun Green was first elected to the council in 2002, and has held executive portfolio roles including environment and schools, as well as children and young people.

She is the eighth female council leader in London, and it also means that the two Liberal Democrat-controlled London boroughs both have women leaders, alongside Ruth Dombey at Sutton Council.

Former council leader Roger Hayes backed Coun Green to take the party forward through next year's local elections.

Mr Hayes said: "I thought she was destined for great things and I'm absolutely delighted she is leader."

Byelection candidates are named

The Liberal Democrats were the first party to announce their candidate for the by-election to replace former council leader Derek Osbourne.

Lesley Heap, wife of Kingston councillor Trevor Heap, will be standing for election to Beverley ward in New Malden on July 25 – the same ward as her Lib Dem husband.

Labour announced its candidate, Marian Freedman, the mother of Labour parliamentary candidate Max Freedman.

Former policeman Terry

Paton will represent the Conservatives.

Chris Walker will stand for the Green Party.

At the last Beverley ward election in 2010 the Liberal Democrats held all three seats with Mr Osbourne polling 2,138 votes.

Ex-leader statement

Former council leader Derek Osbourne has "fully co-operated" with the police investigation following his arrest, his lawyers have said.

Solicitors acting for Mr Osbourne issued a short statement last week saying the ex-Liberal Democrat stalwart was anxious to resolve the matter.

It was the first public statement made on behalf of Mr Osbourne since his shock arrest on suspicion of possessing indecent images of children on June 11.

Phil Smith, from Tuckers Solicitors in London, said: "My client has fully co-operated with the police investigation since he was unexpectedly arrested.

"He is anxious to assist in resolving this matter."

Woman made MBE for domestic violence work

A Kingston woman who was made an MBE for helping victims of domestic violence said the courage of victims inspired her.

Jo Keogh, 47, from Thames Ditton, was made an MBE in the Queen's Honours Birthday list for her dedication to victims of domestic violence.

The crisis intervention and risk manager at Kingston police was the founder of the successful one-stop shop, which was set up in 2003, but has been working against domestic violence for 26 years.

She said: "I am very overwhelmed at the moment but I am proud.

"I really enjoy my work. It

by NAZIA DEWJI

ndewji@london.newsquest.co.uk

is about supporting people through difficult times.

"The Wednesday's Women groups over the years have been amazing.

"I am in complete awe of every single woman that has attended.

"Their strength, courage, resilience and humour in the face of such dire circumstances is what has given me the inspiration to keep working on their behalf."

She also praised the support of her colleagues and said without them she would not have been able to carry on.

She said she was looking forward to the official ceremony and would be taking her mother and daughter along.

Christos Kalamatianos, Kingston's acting borough commander, said: "I would like to congratulate Jo on her appointment as a Member of the Order of the British Empire in the Queen's Birthday Honours.

"Jo has received the award in recognition of her work in supporting victims of domestic violence both within Kingston as well as across the Metropolitan Police Service.

"Her dedication and commitment to those affected by domestic abuse is second to none.

"This is a well-deserved award for outstanding work."

After working for Women's Aid helpline while at university, Mrs Keogh later managed its London helpline before it merged with the Refuge service to become the National Domestic Violence Helpline.

She was the co-ordinator of North Kensington Women's Aid, then Kingston Women's Aid, during which time she set up outreach services that still exist as the Hestia Kingston Floating Support Service.

Bailing out neighbours

Kingstonians could soon share water with neighbouring Leatherhead and Sutton.

Thames Water confirmed it could bail out Sutton and East Surrey Water, which said it could run out of water within 25 years. The two companies have an agreement that a small amount of water will be shared when necessary.

A Thames Water spokesman said: "Inter-company trades like this one are always under discussion."

Sutton and East Surrey Water has said it is looking at ways to meet an expected population rise on its patch of 1.4m people by 2040.

A spokesman said: "We can bridge the projected gap for the next five to 10 years through a further reduction in leakage, installing many more meters and encouraging the wise use of water.

"However, after 2025 we are likely to require a major new source of water."

Poppy Appeal 'under threat'

A Second World War veteran said two people have come forward so far after news a long-standing poppy appeal could be scrapped if a leader is not found to head the project.

Last year the Malden and Coombe Poppy Appeal raised £35,000 for the Royal British Legion, but this year the total could be zero if no one is found to spearhead the campaign.

The Royal British Legion provides help and support to serving and ex-service men and women as well as their families.

Major Ron Morris, 86, who was about to leave his home for an operation in hospital when he spoke to the Kingston Guardian, said: "I think it is terribly sad in this day and age none of the younger generation are coming forward to help."

"All the people last year were elderly – over 50 – mostly in their 60s and 70s. The younger generation are not coming forward to help us."

"I am not hopeful they will find somebody. There is a chance but I could not say I am hopeful."

Former organiser June Fairclough, who has been in the

by NAZIA DEWJI

ndewji@london.newsquest.co.uk

role for five years, will be stepping down from the poppy appeal due to illness.

She said: "People are so lovely when you are collecting. It is very rewarding. I thoroughly enjoyed doing it."

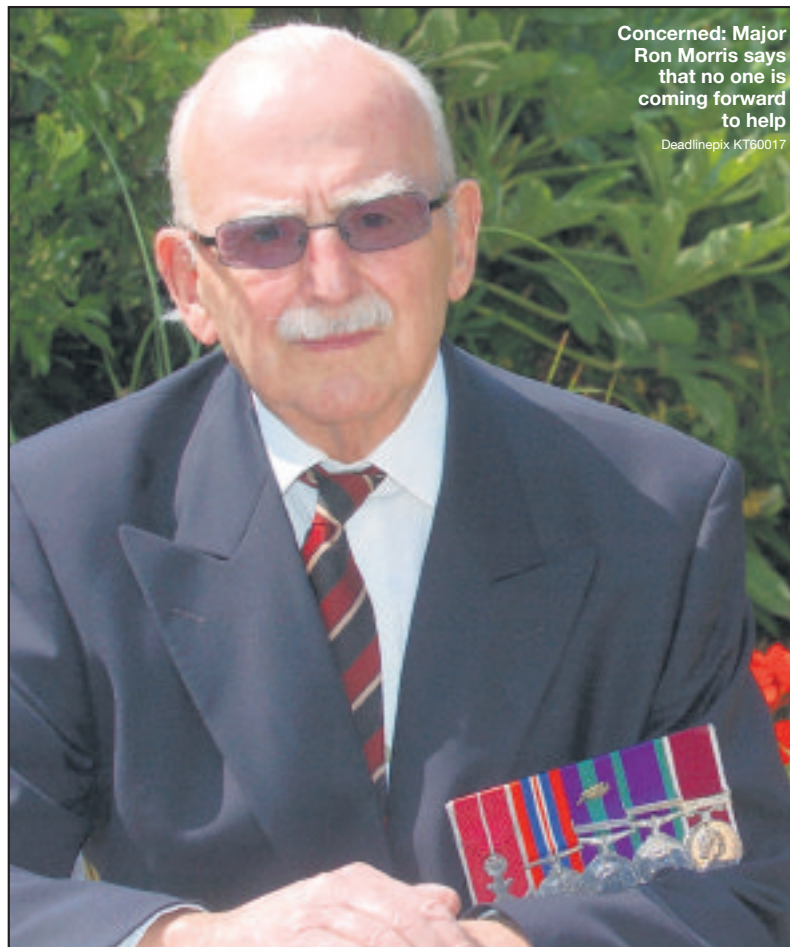

"I have been doing it for a while and it is a lot of work. The person who was going to do it has backed out so we are back to where we started."

She said it would be ideal to find somebody by August at the latest in order to go through the official paperwork and be set to raise money by November.

St James ward councillor Ken Smith said: "We do not have a Poppy Appeal organiser and unless someone comes forward and offers to help we cannot sell poppies either at static points or in the shops."

"The branch do not want Malden and Coombe to let all the veterans old and young who need our help go without."

Sculptures in gardens

Artists will take centre stage when a sculpture park sprouts up in Kingston.

Sitespecific, a new project founded by two arts graduates, will see the memorial gardens become an open-air studio as part of the International Youth Arts Festival (IYAF).

Charlotte Robson, co-founder of the scheme, said: "We are keen on getting more visual art in Kingston, as the music and performing arts scene is already amazing."

Ten artists will be showcasing their work in the gardens between July 10 and 24. Students from Kingston University, Kingston College, and graduates from other institutions will be taking part.

Aniela Zaba, director of Creative Youth, said: "We have touched on visual arts exhibitions before, primarily indoors. Two years ago we made silk banners to hang throughout the town. But this time we are really leading the visual by having a sculpture garden and art trail."

The Art Trail Kingston, an online, interactive arts map, will help archive the sculptures within the borough and guide visitors to the works.

There will be a public view of the sculpture park on Wednesday, July 10, at 6pm.

Time to change your mattress?

Most people sleep on it and pay the price.

A tired mattress can leave you feeling just as tired too

By Sandra Haynes

Is your mattress over 7 years old, saggy or just not as comfortable as it used to be? Putting off replacing it can lead to disturbed sleep, morning tiredness, stiff neck and back ache. In fact, it's the main reason for lack of sleep for most people – they just don't realize it.

Buying a new mattress might seem like an expense you can manage without but it's one of the most valuable things you can do to improve your health and general well being.

What happens to your old mattress over time?

The main problem is deteriorating support. Over time, the springs inside your mattress lose their firmness so they start to sag under your weight. Eventually they become so weakened they retain your shape creating dips and hollows across the surface of the mattress. It's this unevenness and lack of support that causes the body to toss and turn during the night. The lumpier it gets the more disturbed sleep you're likely to get.

The benefits of a new mattress to you

You'll literally notice the difference overnight! From the moment you lie on it to when you wake up in the morning, a new mattress will transform your whole body and your mood too.

- You'll sleep better for longer
- Fall asleep quicker and easier
- Wake up feeling far more refreshed
- Aches and pains will simply fade away
- Well rested you'll feel happier in yourself
- You'll find you have more energy
- Handle the stresses of the day much more easily

Right now, you'll PAY LESS to regain a good nights sleep with our EXTRA DISCOUNT SPECIAL OFFER!

Crowning glory that is market

I wonder what any of the Saxon kings, once crowned in the centre of Kingston, would have made of the council's proposal for the historic market place.

It seems that it is going to be turned into a recreational area with yet more stalls selling hot dogs, fried onions, frankfurters and fried chicken. To say nothing of the eviction of veteran stall holders who have served the community so well over so many years.

It appears there has been little or no consultation with the public before embarking on such high handed action.

Kingston was much more important in the days of the Saxons which is no surprise, since, after so many decades, the town has been compelled to turn its back on one of its best asset, the Thames.

We need some answers over market place plans

I am writing on behalf of the committee of the Kingston upon Thames Society to add its serious concerns to the ground swell that has already been publicly expressed about the direction in which the ancient market is being steered.

We are concerned that policy making about this market has been delegated to Kingston First, which appears to be limiting the range of goods that can be sold to food items, after generations of it being a general market.

Although consultations have been held over the years about the physical design of the market and stalls, never once has the public been asked to comment on the items to be offered for sale.

The decision by Kingston First to deny longstanding non-food traders a place in the new scheme is unreasonable and undemocratic.

We are concerned that no representative of the market traders is on the list of Kingston First's board members currently on its website, although various retailers are listed, and the chairman is an employee of John Lewis. No plan is available for provision of trading facilities while building work is carried out in the market place, and the livelihoods of stallholders is under threat.

The situation raises the following questions.

1. Is Kingston Council legally entitled to delegate the management of the market, including the goods to be sold, to Kingston First?

2. When Kingston Council

delegated the management of the market to Kingston First, did it specify the range of goods to be sold, and why did it do this?

3. Is Kingston Council satisfied that the proposed arrangements for the market are in the public interest and not in restraint of trade?

4. How will market trading be enabled during the building work?

Protect our vegetation

Frank Middleton's letter regarding the destruction of trees and vegetation along Lower Marsh Lane resonated as I had just written to the councillor of that ward complaining of the same thing (Pointless tree destruction, June 20).

This was the oldest and longest mixed hedgerow in central Kingston and judging by the age of the oak standards that remain, may have been deemed as ancient a hedgerow as we will ever have.

In other boroughs the ancient hedgerows are protected by the local development framework and biodiversity action plan.

The reply I received was that a council officer had suggested that this would attract wildlife, even though no assessment of the original hedgerow appeared to have been undertaken nor assessment of the impact of the removal of 2km of hedgerow on local wildlife.

The Hogsmill Valley is the reservoir for wildlife in central Kingston and something we need to protect.

Already awash with cafes and coffee shops

I am outraged by Kingston First's decision to evict traders in the market place to make way for "aspirational" food stalls, and depressed by yet another example of the current determination to undermine what is left of the town's charm and individuality.

The excuse given by Kingston First in your report of May 15 - that the evictions are part of "our aspiration to make Kingston Market Place the best it can be" - is both insulting and disheartening.

It is insulting to traders and customers, who relish the variety and vibrancy that the current range of stalls offers, and disheartening because of the blinkered, unimaginative mindset of an organisation that sees aspiration only in yet more feeding places.

Kingston is awash with cafes and coffee shops and does not need more.

What it needs is varied and useful retail outlets that will appeal to a broad range of Kingston shoppers.

If Kingston First truly has the interests of the town centre at heart, it will stand behind the traders who add so much to Kingston's shopping experience and do all it can to prevent the town becoming the sole preserve of chains and multi-nationals.

At this rate we might as well shop at the Westfield shopping centre.

EIGHTY YEARS OF EXCELLENCE

Tolworth Girls' School celebrates it's 80th birthday

Tolworth Girls' is a thriving Community school with a healthy and open attitude to progress and change. We like to feel that we appreciate and value others through celebration, praise and thanks. We interpret our community in the broadest sense, and look outwards to meet it in a host of ways.

During our 80 years we believe that we have challenged gender stereotypes and encouraged all of our students to pursue their dreams. Our examination results reflect our culture of high expectations and our pursuit of excellence across all aspects of our work. Our curriculum prepares students effectively for life in modern democratic Britain and our Global Society. Our students have exemplary attitudes to learning, there is a strong ethos of mutual respect and all students from all backgrounds are exceptionally considerate of each other.

We are delighted that over 75% of our students choose to stay on in our mixed sixth form and that a growing number of students from other schools are choosing us for their further study. We have established links not only with Cambridge and Oxford but with a variety of further Educational establishments such as the University of Creative Arts, London Universities and our local providers.

80 Years of service

Tolworth Girls' School opened in 1932; it cost £4,000 to buy the land and £36,000 to build the original school building. This sum did include furniture and equipment.

Nine teachers were appointed to assist the first head teacher a Miss Grant and all were unmarried ladies (as married women were not allowed to work in case they kept men out of a job!) 274 girls joined the school and were placed into 7 tutor groups.

The school was very popular and quickly grew in size; the Headteacher had a particular interest in Arts, music and drama resulting in many school productions, concerts and even an appearance on the radio.

The school badge was designed in 1951 and represents the land usage for flax production; the windmill represents industry and learning, and the flax flowers beauty and growth.

The school has had some additional buildings added to accommodate its popularity as well as the growing population of Kingston. The Bill Dickinson Suite, the Dorothy Davies library and the TRC all enhance the learning opportunities for the students at TGS.

There are a number of recurring themes that hold our 80 years together. Our commitment to our local community, our phenomenal success in fund raising for local as well as international Charities, the wealth of extra-curricular opportunities ranging from the D of E to dance and drama, our caring and mutually supportive environment and our commitment to achieve the very best we can for our students.

Times Past

The School building has not changed 'that much' according to our 'old girls' who visit whenever they are in the neighbourhood or in the country. There have been obvious changes such as a new uniform – gone are the days of the boater and the sashes, but we do now have Kilts and blazers. The classes in the old building are more or less the same, but the girls used to be upstairs and Southborough boys were down stairs at least until 1963. We even had separate entrances!

We did not have computers or Plasma screen TV's or mobile phones, but we did have type writers and a payphone.

SISTER ACT

A tale of three sisters obsessed with the past, whiling away the years in the remote Shetland Islands, is coming to the Rose Theatre as part of this year's International Youth Arts Festival (IYAF), writes Jon Sharman.

Sisters is a reworked and modernised piece based on Anton Chekov's Three Sisters.

Writer Ben Clare, a Kingston University graduate, says: "This is my first production in the main house there. It is a really exciting opportunity."

"I have been involved with the theatre for a number of years. I fell in love with the incredible space and the dynamics of it.

"I am a big fan of Chekov's work and especially Three Sisters. It is a very poignant, funny drama about a family set in Russia at the turn of the 20th century.

"What I wanted to do was write a new play inspired by it. I have transformed it to modern day, to a remote island.

"It is about young people and their ups and downs. It is set over several years and charts the family through good times and bad times."

The play explores the rocky transition from childhood to adulthood.

Actress Naomi Marsden, another Kingston graduate who plays lovelorn middle sister Mia, says the group's weekly rehearsals are going well.

She says: "I think they are going to get a bit more intense in the next few weeks. We have got to do it on the main stage of the Rose, so we have got some work to do because we have been working in a small space."

The sisters' reclusive world is shaken up by the return of soldiers from the Iraq war.

Marsden says: "She is in a loveless marriage. This man she used to love is back from the war, and that complicates things a bit.

"They live in this old-worldy time. They are kind of obsessed with the past and their ancestors.

"They don't have glamorous parties any more like they used to. They long for London.

"She is quite witty and very intelligent, but quite a difficult person. She says all the things no one wants to say."

She says she is enjoying being part of the IYAF again. She says: "It is brilliant. Every year it gets bigger and bigger.

"It feels like Kingston comes alive for the month or so that it's on."

The growing popularity of real ale has served up a lifeline for struggling pubs and breweries that have been hit hard by the recession and may otherwise have had to call last orders, writes Clare Buchanan.

Specialist real-ale shops are becoming more popular as are bars like Ales and Tails in Twickenham, which aims to showcase the best in British craft brewing and distilling.

The bar and kitchen is the newest concept from the Lost Group, made up of Lost Society in Clapham, The Lost Angel in Battersea and Lost and Co in Putney.

The group's extensive drinks list boasts weird and wonderful tipples including those from eight casks and 12 kegs, which barmaid Emily says go down a storm.

She says: "People are bored with paying almost as much for mainstream products that are not even that nice."

"When you go to a smaller brewery you know you are getting a quality product and something special and different."

"I think people are more curious."

"There is a lot more out there now."

"It used to be about the bigger brewers owning the field but there are a lot more now."

Bar staff at Ales and Tails are knowledgeable about the drinks they serve and Emily said this, along with the ability to offer something different and special, is the key for businesses that want to stay open.

The real-ale resurgence has also seen the number of breweries in the country rocket to more than 1,000 and more are popping up all around us.

Passion for gardens

It was a life-changing moment for Sue Biggs when her mother presented her with a fork, a trowel, and a packet of seeds, on her seventh birthday, writes June Sampson.

For it engendered a passion for gardening that led, 48 years later, to her appointment as director general of the Royal Horticultural Society (RHS), the most important body of its kind in the world.

That was three years ago, and Biggs still describes her job as "a dream come true".

She has been joyfully overseeing the Hampton Court Palace Flower Show, to which she was devoted, and attended every year as an ordinary visitor, long before arriving at the RHS.

"I have always thought it the best gardening show in the world, not only for its huge range of exhibits, but its incomparable setting," she says.

Biggs's years of experience as an ordinary visitor, plus her powerful role as head of the RHS, should guarantee that this year's Hampton Court Palace Flower Show – already noted as the largest and most beautiful show of its kind in the world – will be the best yet.

● Hampton Court Palace Flower Show will run from Tuesday, July 9 to Sunday, July 14. The first two days will be for RHS members only. On the remaining days, all-day tickets for the public will be £29.50 or £19 for entry after 3pm (2.30pm on the Sunday) and £23 and £15 respectively for RHS members. But each paying adult can bring two children aged under 16 free of charge.

Garden GRUB

If summer does eventually arrive, people will no doubt be flocking to their gardens and nearby parks to make the most of the sun while it lasts, writes Ross Logan.

And should the damp weather finally disperse, then what better way to enjoy it than with a picnic, barbecue, or outdoor meal? Al fresco dining is certainly one of life's finest and most simple pleasures – but there's more to it than just sticking a few supermarket burgers on a barbie. The Grove pub, Surbiton, manager Andy Murrell offered his top tips for enjoying a meal out in the sun.

He says: "There's nothing better than a big group of friends sitting in the sun quaffing a pale rose.

"My suggestion would be something from the Cotes de Provence region in south-east France."

Murrell says the experience is always enhanced when the meal is shared – and recommended trying some fresh seafood.

He says: "Some quality seafood can make the day. Whether it's a dressed Dorset crab or a simple prawns in chilli and garlic oil, it's all good."

But he warns against serving up a pudding for afters.

He says: "Dessert not pudding. You don't want a heavy pudding when you're baking in the sun. Something like Eton Mess or a really fresh fruit salad is sometimes all you need."

Surbiton chef Richard Hards has worked at Gordon Ramsay's Boxwood Cafe in Knightsbridge and Marco Pierre White's L'Escargot restaurant.

He says: "My big thing is keeping it as simple as possible, and getting the majority of it done in advance."

"I always do stuff as early as I can so I can enjoy the weather myself – I don't want to be stuck in a hot kitchen or stood over a barbecue while everybody is making the most of the sun. Plus, food goes cold a hell of a lot quicker outside, so it's a case of getting the food out and letting people go crazy."

BODY MUSIC

Electro-pop music sensations AlunaGeorge are to perform at McClusky's ahead of the release of their debut album, writes Hannah Crompton.

The duo, Aluna Francis and George Reid, were the first act to perform at McClusky's indie night New Slang, which until September 2012 was at the Hippodrome.

The pair featured on Surrey electronic music duo

Disclosure's White Noise, which went to number two in the official UK charts.

You can buy both a club ticket and the album, Body Music, from Banquet Records for £13.

For those who prefer vinyl, you can grab a ticket and the double LP for £22.

Why spare rooms can be a waste of space

More than half of us have at least one unloved room in their house.

According to a new study, by B&Q, the spare bedroom is the most neglected space in the home, with more than a third (37 per cent) admitting it is in need of attention. Used as a dumping ground for excess mess by some, shut off from visitors by others – even simply entering that unloved room leaves nearly a quarter (24 per cent) of house-proud Brits feeling embarrassed.

This results, says B&Q, on average, in 16.58 square feet being wasted space per home and nearly 14 million rooms in the UK left ignored or neglected.

A third (33 per cent) said that their unloved room has stopped them from feeling as though their home was complete and nearly a quarter (23 per cent) confessed that the room in question actually prevented them from enjoying their home.

Kirstie Allsopp said: "My number one obsession is functioning rooms. You can't have rooms that are just full of junk."

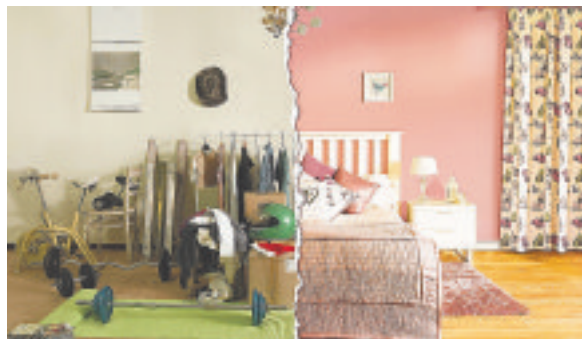

"You should be getting 100 per cent use out of your home. It's about clearing out and being inventive with storage. There's no need to spend vast sums on rehabilitation. The key is to keep reassessing the way your home is used, as life changes, and to adjust accordingly."

Psychologist, Dr. Linda Papadopoulos comments: "In order to feel contained and happy within a living space, you need to have a sense of ownership over the look and feel of the room, or a sense of what it does practically. If this isn't the case then it's less likely that one will be able to enjoy that space."

New president named

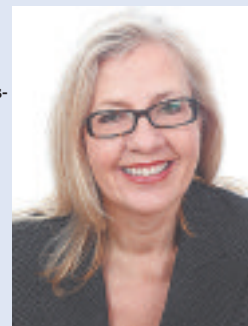

Susan Fitz-Gibbon, who founded leading Richmond-based Fitz-Gibbon, has been named of the new president of the Association of Residential Letting Agents (ARLA).

Susan founded Fitz-Gibbon Residential in 1988. The company, now Fitz-Gibbon is a specialist residential letting and property management company with offices in Richmond, Chiswick and St Margaret's. Susan has been a member of ARLA for 23 years.

She said of her appointment: "It is an exciting time for lettings and lettings agents, with the private rental sector more popular than ever."

"Professional standards have become an issue that is widely talked about and we are on the cusp of some significant and welcome reform. I will continue to push up professional standards within the lettings industry and ensure the member base is effectively represented."

Susan has also been sitting on the National Federation of Property Professionals board's divisional council since June 2010. She is a committee member of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce, is an ambassador for SPEAR – a charity for homeless people and founder and main board member of Chordoma UK, www.chordoma.uk.org.

She co-founded Chordoma with her husband Gerald after she was diagnosed with this rare form of bone cancer in 2007. On its website she says: "One day I was a busy, happy mum, wife, sister, daughter, friend, business woman with not enough hours in the day to do all the things I wanted to do. Then out of the blue and with no prior warning I was told I had a life threatening cancer, one of the truly rare ones, and no-one was able to give me any real information about how my life was going to be from now on."

"Research into the diagnosis and treatment is in the early stages. More research will shed light on this cruel, indiscriminate cancer that hides itself away. And more research will help to fight it and offer real hope to its sufferers."

TEST DRIVE TOP TIPS

- Try to take your time on a test drive, even if you feel the seller breathing down your neck.
- Try to drive more than one example if you're looking at an unfamiliar model. This will give you a better idea of what that car should feel like to drive and may help you to tell the difference between characteristics and possible faults.
- Allow at least half an hour and drive on all kinds of road – a test drive in a town is of little use if you spend most driving time on a motorway.
- Can you get in and out of the car easily?
- Can you adjust the seat and steering so you're comfortable?
- Can you see the instruments clearly and reach the controls easily?
- Try reversing into a parking space to check all round vision and blind spots.
- Take your children with you – are they comfortable in the back?
- Take any child seats you use with you and check that they fit
- Is there space for your regular shopping bags, luggage, golf clubs, pushchair etc? Can you fold the rear seats easily?
- Is the boot sill low enough? Will you be able to unload shopping and luggage easily from the back?
- Is it easy to take out and re-fit removable seats? Ask the owner's permission before you try.

Surbiton duo on course for hockey glory

Surbiton Hockey Club's Sarah Haycroft, pictured, and Georgie Twigg are on the verge of qualifying for the Hockey World Cup and the World Hockey League Finals with England.

After a 4-1 win over South Africa on Saturday, and a 1-1 draw with Australia on Sunday, England faced Spain on Tuesday night for a spot in the World Hockey League quarter-finals.

Victory in that quarter-final will guarantee a place in the WHL finals in Argentina in November. Victory in the semi-final will virtually secure a place in the 2014 World Cup in Holland.

Sbihi on even keel

Surbiton's Moe Sbihi refused to get carried away after his men's eights team won gold at Eton Dorney in the second regatta of the Samsung Rowing World Cup.

With Molesey Boat Club clubmates Andrew Triggs Hodge and James Foad, the team replicated their form from the Sydney regatta to win back-to-back World Cup golds.

But it took an enormous effort to pull ahead of the Polish boat over the final 500m in what was a 10-second improvement on Friday's time in the disappointing heats.

Sbihi said: "It was good, but it was just an improvement on Friday, a bit better. It's still work in progress."

"Lucerne [the third and final regatta in July] is going to be really tough and, to be brutally honest, we'll have to up our game because the level we're at at the moment, we won't win."

Due South

Mel South from New Malden was due to start her Wimbledon ladies doubles campaign with partner Tara Moore yesterday against the Spanish pair Silvia Soler-Espinosa and Carla Suarez Navarro. Go to kingstonguardian.co.uk/sport to keep up to date.

Clean sweep: Worcester Park's Joe Hill on his way to 67 against Trinity Mid-Whitgiftians – despite the knock, the afternoon would end in frustration

SP77307

Waite feels the frustration

It was a frustrating day for Worcester Park skipper Rob Waite after his charges had to settle for a Division Two winning draw at home to second-bottom club Trinity Mid-Whitgiftians on Saturday.

After Sandeep Ganguly (72) and Joe Hill (67) had helped to set Trinity a target of 253 to win, the visitors set out their stall and were on 185-5 off 52 overs when play was ended.

Waite said: "It was a frustrating game. The opposition showed no intention of getting the runs to win the game."

"The pitch was slow and low and had nothing in it. We tried everything to force their batsmen into a mistake, but it was never going to happen."

He added: "It always vital to win the toss at our ground and unfortunately it came down on the wrong side for us on this occasion."

"You always want to be the team that chases down a total rather than having to bowl a team out."

"Trinity have some good players and, being bottom, you can understand why they played how they did, but it does not make it any less frustrating."

The result leaves Park in mid-table, with a trip to Ashford this weekend.

Traynor is a K again

Kingstonian legend Bobby Traynor has returned to spearhead manager Alan Dowson's latest Ryman Premier League campaign.

The 29-year-old, who was Dowson's first signing as manager in 2007, went on to score 154 goals in 255 appearances.

Dowson said: "Bobby is a great pro and his record speaks for itself."

"His service to this club has been outstanding and we are all really excited to have him back."

Dowson has also signed former MK Dons defender Sam Page, as well as securing the services of Rob Tolfrey, Matt Somner, Dan Sweeney and Jamil Okai.

Going out the Kingsmeadow door are Paul Vines to Dulwich Hamlet, Tom Bird and Szymon Sidorowicz to Hayes & Yeading, and midfielder Lewis Taylor to Whitehawk.

Ks have arranged six pre-season friendlies so far at Dover Athletic (July 13), Corinthian Casuals (July 20), Dulwich Hamlet or Carshalton Athletic (July 21), Bedfont & Feltham (July 28) and Walton Casuals (August 3) – as well as the visit of a Tottenham Hotspur XI to Kingsmeadow on July 18.

Tom's dealing in extremes

by TIM ASHTON

tim.ashton@london.newsquest.co.uk

Tom Onslow-Cole was on the British Touring Car Championship podium on Sunday for the third time this season, and yet he is only just beginning to understand his car.

As well as his third place finish in the second race at Croft, the 26-year-old from New Malden also took a 10th and 12th place berth, leaving him ninth in the overall standings ahead of the trip to Snetterton in August.

Last weekend's fifth round meeting at Croft was affected by damp conditions, something that played into Onslow-Cole's hands behind the wheel of his VW Passat.

He said: "Tricky damp conditions are a real leveller in terms of the car and it comes down to making the most of the tyres you're on. As the driver you have to find the right lines better, and that really plays into my hands."

He added: "We have a good car and we're beginning to understand it more and more."

"We have the pace at the start of a race but about half way through, that pace drops off a cliff. I put it down to the car being too stiff in the roll. That puts too much weight on the tyres."

"But we're still doing well with such a new car, and although we're dealing in extremes, finishing at nine or 10, and then a podium, and back to nine or 10, we're taking the positives."

Podium presence: Tom Onslow-Cole took a third place at Croft to claim another podium place
